Syria Raises Taxes To Pay War Costs
To defray military costs and conserve scarce forei exchange, Damascus has raised taxes and prices of basic commodities. Official fuel prices have gone up 10 to 30 percent.	25X1

In addition, a broadly based tax earmarked for defense expenditures has been doubled, and another 20-percent surcharge has been added to support the families of Syrian casualties. According to the US Embassy, the government is rumored to be planning a 50- to 100-percent increase in nearly all other taxes except income taxes.	25X1
Comment: Recent Arab aid payments apparently have been used primarily to meet military expenses. The government continues to limit civilian imports to food and other basic commodities.

CHINA-US-TAIWAN: Reaction to Communique
China's official Foreign Ministry statement and a People's Daily editorial yesterday warmed that the US-Chinese communique does not resolve the differences over Taiwan or remove the Taiwan Relations Act as a major obstacle to closer ties.	25X1
Beijing stressed in both official vehicles that the communique is the first step toward the settlement of the Taiwan issue. In underscoring the principles of sovereignty and noninterference in each other's internal affairs, the Chinese said that only the termination of US arms sales to Taiwan would satisfy them and permit the unimpeded development of their relationship with the US. They attacked the Taiwan Relations Act; disavowed any link between it and the communique; and warned that, if the US managed relations in accordance with the Act, it would certainly bring another "grave crisis."	25X1
Taiwan's official reaction, meanwhile, expressed regrets over the communique and publicized alleged US assurances about policy toward the island.	25X1
Comment: China's quick move to go on record with its interpretation of the document may be politically necessary for Deng Xiaoping and his supporters, who are responsible for the compromise that avoided a serious rupture in relations with the US. In repeating their previous attacks on the Taiwan Relations Act, however, the Chinese also are indicating they will continue to monitor US policy and behavior toward Taiwan. In this atmosphere, new arms sales or other US actions that
Beijing considers in violation of the communique will prompt a sharply negative reaction.	25X1
By playing down the significance of the communique, Taipei apparently is trying to deny domestic critics a new opportunity to attack its handling of relations with
Washington. Some in Taipei may try to mount stronger attacks on the document, but the government is likely to curb their efforts because of its concern that such action could jeopardize US arms sales.	25X1

MOZAMBIQUE-CUBA: Possible Request for Troops
//The Cuban Ambassador in Maputo last week told his British counterpart that Havana believes Mozambique, as a result of the deteriorating security situation there, will call for Cuban combat troops.//	25X1
//The Ambassador seemed unenthusiastic over such a prospect. He stated, however, that Havana would feel compelled to acquiesce.//	25X1
Comment: //It is unusual for Cuban diplomats to vo- unteer such sensitive information to Western colleagues unless acting on instructions from Havana. The Ambassadoremarks may have been a forewarning that a decision has been made. They also may have been intended to encourage the West to put pressure on Pretoria to reduce its aid to the insurgents, a move Havana may hope would relieve it of the need to send troops.//	or's

SEYCHELLES: Army Mutiny
//President Rene is attempting to negotiate with some 55 muting ing troops who are seeking the ouster of four of the Army's commanding officers.//	/- 25X1
The dissidents backed up their demands on Tuesday by seizing the local radio station and 239 hostages. Heavy small arms fire and some military casualties occurred during the early phases of the mutiny.	25X′
The mutineers have threatened to release the mercenaries who were convicted after a South African coup attemlast November.	pt 25X′
The US Air Force tracking station in Mahe reports that the apparent cause of the mutiny was anger over severe military discipline ordered by the four officers.	25X1
Comment: Rene probably has enough support on hand-loyal members of the 900-man Army and approximately 120 Tanzanian soldiers stationed on the islandto retain control. France, which came to Rene's aid during the November attack, probably again would answer his call, but Rene probably prefers to try to negotiate first to avoid stirring up racial tension by cracking down on members of the virtually all-black Army.	25X1
He probably also is eager for an excuse to get rid of the four officers, who are a threat to him. He will not want, however, to lose his independence by giving in to the dissidents.	25X1
There is no evidence of foreign involvement in the mutiny, although the US tracking station reported that a government boat picked up Soviet Embassy officials as the coup began.	25X1
South Africa has kept a low profile in the islands since the coup attempt last November.	25X1

INTERNATIONAL: Prospects for Global Negotiations	25X1
//French soundings among selected developing countries indicate prospects are dim for agreement soon on starting Global Negotiations.//	25X1
on behalf of the OECD has been urging key developing countries to accept the Versailles summit amendments to their proposed draft on Global Negotiations.//	25X1
//None of the countries canvassed by France is prepared to change its position.	25X1
The Versailles position differs substantially from the developing countries' draft. The industrialized nations want to preserve the independence of such specialized institutions as GATT and the IMF, in which they now	25X1 have preponderant power. The developing countries prefer to concentrate the power of a central body within the UN in order to exert influence over the specialized agencies.	25X1 25X1
Comment:  most developing countries probably remain interested enough that they will become more flexible later and will try hard to persuade the intransigents.//	] 25X1

ARGENTINA: Labor Challenges the Government

Railroad workers and bus drivers are threatening to strike beginning today if demands for substantial wage 25X1 hikes are not met. State electrical workers have announced a strike for next week, and the US Embassy reports other unions may shortly call work stoppages.

Comment: //Some of the threatened strikes probably will materialize. The government so far has avoided large work stoppages through mediation by the Ministry of Labor, but the strikes in the transportation and energy sectors, coupled with growing social unrest, would test the effectiveness of the regime. President Bignone probably will combine an offer of modest wage increases with threats of a crackdown in an attempt to persuade the unions to call off the strikes. Even if these 25X1 tactics succeed in the short run, the wage-price spiral will continue to undermine government efforts to stabilize the economy and contain social discontent.//
